"Think of your own faults the first part of the night when you are awake, and the faults of others the latter part of the night when you are asleep."

Senator Hale, who has been a patient at the Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore, has returned to his home in greatly improved health.

Houlton is to celebrate the centennial of her incorporation Aug. 21 and 22. E. L. Cleveland, a former Knox county man, is chairman of the committee of arrangements. That settles it; "twill be a success.

Penobscot salmon has reached the poor man's price. Best cuts now sell for 25 cents a pound and tail and head slices are sold for 15 cents a pound. Now is the time when the Bangor man who wants to make a present that will be greatly appreciated and not cost much, sends a whole salmon to a distant friend. A salmon packed nicely and neatly boxed in ice costs about $2 in Bangor, and when it arrives at some distant point looks up like a $25 gift or better. Fresh salmon are sent as far west as Chicago, frequently, and last year two fresh salmon were sent to Scotland and arrived in good condition. The late James F. Moses, the famous old hotel keeper and proprietor of the Robinson house in Bucksport, which was famous for its salmon dinners, serving the fish every day from the opening of the season, claimed that unlike most fish salmon should not be served fresh, but like beef should be kept for a time to season. Kept on ice for a few days, the oily taste disappeared and in many other respects the fish was much better than served directly out of the water, he claimed.

Some important designations for naval command afloat have been indicated. It is understood by the President. Captain Richard Wainwright—member of the naval general board, and army and navy joint board, and at present president of the special board detailed to revise the course of studies at the Naval Academy—will assume command of the United States ship Louisiana. The three scout ships which are under construction will be commanded by officers at present on duty in Washington, who, of course, will not be able to assume these duties afloat for some time, the first assignment being to duty as general inspector of the scout cruiser in each case. The Salem will be commanded by Lieutenant Commander Albert L. Key, who is on duty in connection with the naval general board, and who is the naval aid to the President and a valuable adviser of the Chief Executive. The other scout cruisers will be commanded by Lieutenant Commander S. S. Wood, also on duty in connection with the general board and the aid to the admiral of the navy, and Lieutenant Commander W. S. Simms, the inspector of target practice in the navy. An assignment to duty of importance just made is that of Captain Charles E. Fox, who has been on waiting orders in Washington, and who will command the South Dakota.

During the month of March the vestry was frescoed and painted and several panes of glass set in its windows. Mr. Chase assumed the pastoral care of this church April 2, 1899. On that date Bro. Chase, his wife, Frances C. Chase, and their daughter, Carrie L. Chase, presented a letter of recommendation from the Baptist church in Mechanic Falls, and were received into the membership of this church. We had then been four months without a pastor. As a church we were at a standstill. Like heretics we had neglected the ordinances, had been carried in to a strange land, our harps had been hung upon the willows, and we were unable to sing the Lord's song.

George Savilian Chase was born in Chester, N. H., July 29, 1836; was agent for the Christian Commission in 1864 and 1865; graduated from Newton Theological Institution in 1866; was ordained at Chester, N. H., July 10, 1866; was pastor at Brattleboro, Vt., from March, 1869 to June, 1872; at Northwood, N. H., from Sept. 1872 to Sept. 1877; at Richmond, Vt., from Sept. 1877 to Jan. 1881; missionary agent of the Vermont State Convention, Jan. to Oct. 1881; pastor at Derby, Vt., from Nov. 1881 to Dec. 1889; principal of Derby Academy from 1883 to 1884; pastor at Springvale from Dec. 1889 to Dec. 1894; at Mechanic Falls from Dec. 1894 to April 1899; at Warren from April 1899 to Jan. 1902. He afterward settled at North Hanson, December 1903, where he is still preaching.

Brother Thayer passed in his resignation Nov. 27, 1898. "To the members of the Warren Baptist Church: Dear Brothers and Sisters—Nearly six years ago you invited me to become your pastor. Following what I believed to be the leading of God, I accepted that call. In accordance with what seems his will now, I ask you to release me from your service, and to accept this my resignation as your pastor, to take effect immediately after the first Sunday in December.

"Let me take this opportunity to express my profound conviction that the Master has need of us. I have faith in the power of God to add grace and power, so that your record in the coming century will be written concerning deeper consecration and more abundant harvests. I want also to thank you for many tokens of your kindness toward both my family and myself, though I did not seek for the gift, but for the fruit that increased to your account. I have arrived at the decision which here announce with no little sorrow; the very threads of my life itself seem woven together with yours. The separation to me is hard, but my God shall supply every need of yours according to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus. Sincerely Yours, Herbert E. Thayer."

Mr. Thayer and his wife Mary B. Thayer were dismissed by letter Dec. 25, 1898, to unite with the Baptist church in Ludlow, Vt., of which he had lately become pastor.

Herbert Edgar Thayer was born in Farmington, Me., Oct. 3, 1860; graduated from Brown University in 1882 and Newton Theological Institution in 1887; was ordained at Hopkinton, N. H., Sept. 7, 1887; was pastor of the Baptist church in that place from July 1887 to December 1898. [Mr. Thayer resigned from Ludlow, Dec. 1894 and immediately entered upon his present pastorate at Park Avenue Baptist church, Springfield, Mass.]

Dec. 18, 1898, a unanimous call was extended to Rev. Theodore F. White of Bar Harbor, Me. The call was accepted and he was to commence his pastorate the first Sabbath in February following. Previous to receiving the call he had contracted a severe cold. Leaving Bar Harbor, he was in connection with the home of his mother in Brunswick, where he was confined to his bed, gradually became weaker, and died of heart failure Monday, Jan. 26, 1899. One month previous, Dec. 26, he preached his last sermon at Bar Harbor. His death was a severe disappointment to this church. We had anticipated much from his pastorate.

Feb. 5, 1899, the church extended a call to Rev. Wm. L. Starrett, of Damariscotta, which was not accepted. At a meeting held Feb. 25, 1899, it was voted to extend a call to Rev. George S. Chase of Mechanic Falls, Me., to become our pastor with an annual salary of $800. The call was received and accepted. March 1, a letter was received informing us of his acceptance of the call.

During the month of March the vestry was frescoed and painted and several panes of glass set in its windows. Mr. Chase assumed the pastoral care of this church April 2, 1899. On that date Bro. Chase, his wife, Frances C. Chase, and their daughter, Carrie L. Chase, presented a letter of recommendation from the Baptist church in Mechanic Falls, and were received into the membership of this church. We had then been four months without a pastor. LIGHTNING BOLTS.

Some Advice Well to Heed in the Thunder Storm Period.

Appropos of the severe electrical storm which visited Rockland last week and the many more which will doubtless follow it, the following from the Portland Express will be of interest:
There are very few fatal accidents from lightning, yet the fact remains that comparatively few people, particularly women and children, are not more or less frightened during the progress of a severe thunder storm. It is undoubtedly well to point out certain dangers, but those who cannot enjoy the approach of a storm, particularly when they are sheltered, miss much that is spectacular, majestic and beautiful in the grand marshalling of the inkly clouds, the flash of light and the deafening roll of Heaven's artillery.

A great deal of old time superstition and nonsense still lingers, and the fear of the fiery bolts from heaven is still deeply implanted in the human mind, and men and women of high courage otherwise will become greatly agitated during a violent thunder storm. The danger, it is true, is a real one, though as we have said the fatalities from lightning are very few, nevertheless, the views and theories of Killingworth Hedges, secretary of the Lightning Research committee of the Royal Institute of British Architects, are of interest and value.

Though there were a few injuries and some marvelous escapes, there were only two fatal accidents among the 500 cases of buildings struck which were sent into the Lightning Research committee. Certain positions, however, seem to be much more dangerous than others during a thunder storm, and the following suggestions are worthy of careful consideration: Keep as far away as possible from an open fireplace, for, if the chimney is struck, the grate and surroundings will almost invariably be blown out into the room. Hot water pipes are very likely to be selected as conductors, and they should, therefore, be avoided during a storm. Do not sit in a greenhouse or conservatory or take refuge in a barn or alongside of a haystack. The popular idea that glass attracts lightning is absurd; in fact, if one does not mind the glare of the lightning, there is no evidence to show that it is unsafe to approach a window.

Fatal accidents generally occur when people take shelter outside a building. A wet wall often conducts some of the electricity, and a person standing near it provides a good path to earth. Especial care should be taken to avoid the proximity of a lightning conductor, and, as any pipes descending from the roof may act as conductors, keep as far away from them as possible. It is well known that trees are most dangerous. There is danger of being struck if one is anywhere under the boughs, as lightning striking a tree disperses like rain through all its branches, with, perhaps, fatal results to persons or to animals in the area below. Trees act to a certain extent, as lightning rods, so that one is fairly safe in their neighborhood, if not directly beneath the branches. When a tree is struck, it is wise to lie down during the height of a storm.

Under no circumstances should one hold up an umbrella or lead a bicycle. It is not that the lightning is directly attracted by such objects, but a flash on its way to earth may strike an innumerable smaller discharges, so that to be near any object containing metal, which may be selected as offering the best path, is, to say the least, unwise. One must bear in mind that a shock which might only cause minor injuries if one's clothing were dry may prove fatal to a person who has been out in the rain for some time.

SEEDLING APPLES OF MAINE.

Bulletin of the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station.

Bulletin 143 of the Maine Experiment Station "The Seedling Apples of Maine" is just being sent out. The purpose of this bulletin is to call attention to those varieties of Maine origin which are worthy of wider dissemination; and to record as accurately as possible, the history of such varieties.

While Baldwin, Greening, and other standard varieties, mostly of New England origin will doubtless remain for many years the leading market sorts, new and valuable sorts are continually appearing, and these will be most likely to excel near their native home, or in their native state. The wholesale importers to orchards by the cold of the past few years is also an incentive to search out the merits of native hardy varieties.

Among the most valuable of the 38 native sorts mentioned in the bulletin, are Doane, Dudley, King Sweet, Rolfe, Starkey and Stone. Some of those described in pomological manuals are said to be wholly or practically extinct; though at one time of considerable importance. An effort is being made at the Station to collect in a "Maine Orchard" such native seedlings as seem to merit attention, and owners of valuable seedling apples are requested to forward specimens of the fruit for examination. Bulletin 143 will be sent free to all residents of Maine who apply to the Agricultural Experiment Station, Orono, Me. In writing, please mention this paper.

A prompt, pleasant, good remedy for coughs and colds is Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. It contains no opiates and does not constipate. Children like it. Sold by Wm. H. Kittredge.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

To Me, Fair Friend.

To me, fair friend, you never can be old, For as you were when first your eye I eyed, Such pleasur'ous beauty still. Three winters cold Have from the forests shook three summers' pride;

Three beauteous springs to yellow autumn turn'd In process of the seasons have I seen; Three April perfumes in three hot Junes burn'd Since first I saw you fresh, which yet a green.

Ab! yet doth beauty, like a dial-hand, Steal from his sight, and no pace perceived; So your sweet hue, which sickles still with stand, Hath motion, and mine eye may be deceived: For fear of which, hear this, thou age unkind,— Ere you were hoar, was beauty's summer dead W. Shakespear.

The Courier-Gazette.

TWICE-A-WEEK.

The Belfast Journal is elated at the discovery that its population now approximates 6000, which will be an increase of practically 1400 since the last official census was taken in 1900. The Journal says: "With less private greed and more public spirit Belfast might easily have had a population of 16,000 today; but it is no use crying over spilled milk and the aroused public spirit of which there are many evidences, promises better things in the future." In the expression of this sentiment the Journal doubtless hits the nail squarely upon the head, and Rockland is possibly one of the cities which might be included in the same category. What this city's census will show in 1910 is a question, no resident has liked to consider. That it is now much, if any, larger than it was in 1900, is hardly probable. We have lost an industry which must have taken away approximately 100 persons, and if we except the renewed activity of Cobb, Butler & Co's shipyard there is nothing that has had a tendency to bring outsiders here. On the other hand go the length of Main street and count the number of vacant stores and offices. Make a careful search of the residential section and see how many desirable rents you can find. There is this much to say about Rockland's population: It is made up largely of one element and while it may not take the upward bounds that looks so nice on paper it is also lacking the fluctuation which makes some places a city one day and a gone-to-seed town the next.

Mr. Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture, says that meat prices are high because the American people are eating more meat today than ever before in their lives. The American workingman, he says, has meat every day, many of them twice a day. They want the best in the market, too. Then there are hundreds of thousands of more mouths to feed daily. Immigrants are coming at the rate of a million annually. Meat was a luxury to them at home. They get work here at good wages, want to live well, and so they eat meat. The secretary explains that the export trade made a big hole in the supply. Last year the exports of animals, meats and meat products amounted to $23,000,000. He says it cost more to raise cattle now and the supply from the ranges was not as large as formerly. All this is very enlightening in the way of explanation even if it doesn't fully reconcile us to the noticeable increase in our market bill.

Uncle Sam is not so rich but that he can practice economy once in a while. Mindful of the increased prices of labor and building material he may call a halt in the construction of public buildings authorized by Congress. It is being found that bids cannot be obtained from contractors that will come within the sum appropriated. Bids were recently opened for new buildings at Petersburg, Va., and Trenton, N. J. The lowest bid on the Petersburg building was about 25 per cent. higher than the appropriation, and the Trenton bids were much too high. The consequence is that these buildings cannot be erected unless Congress appropriates more money. Many bids are to be opened during the next month, and the same results are looked for. It is an unfortunate condition of affairs which no wise statesman has yet been able to regulate, that prosperity always carries high prices with it.

DR. DAMON'S RETURN.

Rockland Dentist is Home From Pacific Coast Where He Invested in Real Estate.

Dr. J. H. Damon, the well known dentist, is back in his office after nine months' absence in the West, where he did some speculating in the real estate line. Accompanied by his wife and children, Dr. Damon went first to Boise City, Idaho, but the climate did not agree with his children and there seemed little or no opportunity for speculation, so the Damons went on to Portland, Oregon, thence down the Pacific coast to Coos Bay, which is located about halfway between Portland and San Francisco. There he found a town of 2000 population, only four years old, having the natural advantages which give promise of future greatness as a city. It is worth noting incidentally that William J. Robertson, a Rockland building contractor, helped erect several of the business structures which marked the humble beginning of the town's boom.

Coos Bay is the only protected bay on the coast and the residents are hopeful of getting an appropriation of $500,000 with which to dredge the harbor. The Southern Pacific Railroad has tracks within 80 miles of Coos Bay and within 12 months the town will and itself dignified as a terminal of that road.

Great industrial opportunities are seen in a coal field covering 400 square miles of territory and the heavy belt of Oregon firs, whence come the masts we know as Oregon "pines." Dr. Damon and family went by rail to the Gulf of Mexico and returned home by water. Dr. Damon will resume his residence and business here, but will watch the mails to note the rise in his real estate properties on the opposite coast.

DAMAGED BY LIGHTNING.

House and Barn of William J. Robbins in Rockville Burned—Losses in Numerous Other Sections.

Tuesday night and Wednesday night gave this section rather more than its share of thunderstorm, Tuesday night's electrical visitation was unusually severe, damage being wrought by lightning for miles around.

The residence and stable of William J. Robbins, comprising part of what is known as Overlook Farm, in Rockville, were burned flat. The bolt struck a chimney in the main part of the house, making a racket which sounded to Mr. Robbins as though the inside of the house was being ripped out. In the house at the time were Mr. and Mrs. Robbins and Winfield Robbins, wife and daughter. Fortunately all were on the ground floor and none was injured, although Mrs. Robbins felt the effect of the shock.

When it was found that Mr. Robbins' house was afire the neighbors went promptly to his assistance, and considerable of the furniture was saved before the fire had gained great headway. Then came the problem of saving the barn, which contained 23 cows and four horses. Armed with pails and milk cans the volunteer firemen poured water onto the imperiled building as fast as they could lug it. The fire seemed to be so severely doomed that Mr. Robbins and others unfurled the cows and horses and turned them to pasture. The barn stood about 60 feet from the burning building, and was subjected to intense heat, but thanks to the valiant efforts of the volunteers the building was saved.

Mr. Robbins estimates his loss at about $2500, and is partially insured through the firm of Cochran, Baker & Cross, with which he had carried a policy 35 years. The burned buildings were erected in 1890, and were originally known as the Abraham O. Norwood place. It is one of the most highly prized farms in Knox county, and Mr. Robbins being a progressive farmer, has always kept the property in first-class condition.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Robbins are making their home temporarily with their daughter, Mrs. Clara Carroll, in Rockville. Winfield Robbins and family are stopping at William Blake's.

Lightning struck the house of Oscar Butler in Thetford Tuesday night. The bolt came in contact with Mr. Butler's person, burning him arm and one side, and rendering him unconscious. He recovered from the shock in due season, and while out of danger will not soon forget that storm. Mr. Butler's daughter was affected by the shock for the time being. In Warren a horse owned by Otis Anderson was killed by lightning. In Cushing the house of Silas Conant was somewhat damaged. Waldoboro, Nobleboro, Damariscotta and other towns to the westward report losses from lightning.

DEAF MUTES COMING.

After Lapse of Many Years Will Hold Convention in Rockland.

The next annual convention of the Maine Mission for the Deaf will be held in Rockland on Saturday and Sunday, August 31 and Sept. 1. Prof John E. Crane of Hartford, Conn., and a native of Maine, is expected to be with us and lecture on the subject of deafness. Further particulars will be announced in the circulars by about the first of July.

Come one and all. All are welcome to this convention. A. L. Carlisle, president, 85 Park View avenue, Bangor; Charles F. Bolson, secretary, Waterville, R. F. D. No. 41.

There is no case of indigestion, no matter how obstinate, that will not be speedily relieved by the use of Kodol. Kodol contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. Conforms to the Pure Food and Drug Law. Sold by Wm. H. Kittredge.

THE JAMESTOWN CONTEST.

Mrs. Newbert and Miss Loring have passed the 2000 mark in The Courier-Gazette Jamestown Exposition contest, with the others but a short distance behind. It is anybody's race and the one to win must work. The contestants and their friends now realize that the prize is worth striving for and each one is working to win. The standing today is as follows:

CLASS A ROCKLAND.
Miss Cora J. Loring.....$192
Carl Blackington.....$271
CLASS B, KNOX COUNTY.
Mrs. Abbie Newbert, Warren.....$250
Miss Winifred Smith, Vinalhaven 2480
Mrs. Abbie Feyler, Thomaston.....$158

ON SIGHT OF MONTPELIER.

One by one the historic spots of Thomaston are being marked. Next in the list will be the site of the old mansion Montpelier, famed as the home of Gen. Henry Knox. Where that palatial structure stood will be placed a huge boulder, marked presumably with a bronze tablet telling to the world where Washington's War Secretary once resided. The boulder was dislodged from the town farm at St. George and brought to Thomaston by a team of oxen. It was hauled to the main road. The memorial will be erected by Henry Knox Chapter, D. A. R. of Thomaston, and the cost has been estimated at $250.

ST. JOHN'S DAY ECHOES.

The Camden, Belfast and Bath newspapers comment pleasantly upon the manner in which the Knight Templar commanderies were entertained in this city on St. John's Day. The Bath Times devoted a column or more to Dunlap's pilgrimage, the article being written by Arthur G. Oliver, himself a Sir Knight. We note the following paragraph:

"The afternoon was passed with dancing and viewing the scenery, and at 6 o'clock a clambake was opened and bushels of clams were made to disappear as if by magic. For the dance J. H. Leach was floor manager and he was a 'dandy.'"

GLENCOVE

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Babcock and Dr. Harriet J. Lovell returned to Boston Tuesday.

A new member was admitted to the Loyal Temperance League, Wednesday evening.

There will not be any meeting at the school house Sunday on account of the baptism at Rockland.

The track at Oakland Park has been completed and cars now run to the pavilion.

Mrs. J. S. Farnham was a guest of her mother, Mrs. Almira Gregory, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Miss Fannie Murch of Rockland spent Monday with Mrs. Humphrey.

PLEASANTVILLE.

C. E. Starratt is having a house built near the steam mill.

Josiah Boynton is in town visiting friends.

Mrs. Jane Jones is now able to sit up some during the day.

Road Commissioner Robinson has been in the place this week repairing the roads.

W. J. Russell arrived home the first of the week from West Somerville, where he visited his son, E. O. Russell.

Maynard Leach and Miss Ula Payson were united in marriage Saturday evening last week. Their many friends wish them a long and happy life.

Jethro Simmons is working at the steam mill.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank the friends of the deceased in our recent bereavement in the loss of our husband and brother (Adelbert M. Marks) for the many beautiful floral offerings, also the Rockland fire department for coming out in a body.

Mrs. A. M. Marks, John J. Marks, Geo. W. Marks, A. L. Marks.

JUNE POMONA GRANGE

Met Saturday With Highland Grange, East Warren—Pomona Degree Upon Sixteen Candidates.

Pomona Grange was well entertained last Saturday by Highland Grange of East Warren. The afternoon session opened at 1:30 with H. Grange presiding. Reports were received from the different granges by the following representatives:

South Hope, D. J. Bowley; Mt. Pleasant, Robert S. Simmons; Mountbrook, George E. Nash; Wessauvee, A. O. Glover; Highland, Nellie Knowlton; Penobscot View, H. N. Brazier; Pleasant Valley, Cora Gardner; Warren, M. S. Hahn; Hope, H. H. Payson; Pioneer, May E. Robbins; Good Will, Erastus Lermond.

The following program was presented under direction of the county lecturer: Address of welcome, Nellie Knowlton; response, A. T. Clifford; readings, Mildred Watts, Mrs. Anette Matthews; story, George E. Nash; recitation, Robert Simmons; question—Should the tax paying women of the State of Maine be taxed without the right to vote in municipal affairs and should the home be benefited by extending the ballot to women.

The question was discussed by A. T. Clifford, A. O. Glover, J. H. Kailoch, George E. Nash, Mrs. O. Gardner, Hannah Brewster, Mrs. W. J. Taylor, Robert Simmons, Frank B. Miller and Erastus Lermond. The majority of the speakers were against granting the ballot to women.

The Pomona degree was taken by candidates as follows: Fannie E. Brown, Phoebe Cates, Robert Cates, B. Conic, Ellen B. Conic, Grace J. Crosby of Highland Grange; Margaret Dornan and James Dornan of Pioneer Grange; Hartley Nash, Megunticook Grange; Henry Payson, Erastus Lermond, Mildred A. Fowles, Hope Grange; Louise Bacheider, Rena D. Wiley, Winnie Winslow, Lizzie Winslow, White Oak Grange; Minnie Clark, Good Will Grange.

About 125 were present at the afternoon session. Supper was served in the Grange hall. Baked beans and brown bread were furnished by the ladies of Highland Grange and pastry by the visitors. At the close of the regular session of Highland Grange the members of Penobscot View Grange furnished the entertainment, giving a drama, which they had presented at their hall a few weeks ago.

The July meeting of the county Pomona will be omitted as the farmers will probably be busy with haying at that time. The August session will be held with Pioneer Grange of East Union, August 2d.

Two field days will be held. The exercises August 13 will be held at Camden on the grange lot near the trotting park. At their meeting addresses will be delivered by F. A. Durtch, Master of the Ohio State Grange and Obadiah Ganser, Master of the Maine State Grange.

The second field day will be held Sept. 5 at Tenants' Harbor with Ocean View Grange of Martinsville and St. George Grange of Wiley's Corner. The exercises will be held at Odd Fellows hall.

COMMENCEMENT AND SUCH.

Colby college graduated a class of 21 men and 31 women this week. Knox county furnished three graduates, Caro Edna Beveridge and Rose Marion Beveridge of Camden and Lubelle Mae Hall of Warren. Miss Caro Beveridge delivered the address to undergraduates. Miss Beveridge was elected to Phi Beta Kappa from the class of '07 on basis of scholarship.

Fannie M. Chute of Thomaston, a student at Colby, was awarded a prize for excellence in German, this week.

Bowdoin college graduated a class of 62. Among the seniors were the following from Knox county: Francis Cornelius Doherty, Rockland, who will be post-graduate student at Yale; Roscoe Hopper, Martinsville, who will do graduate work; Charles W. Snow, Spruce Head, who will become instructor in debating and argumentation at New York University. Mr. Snow had the class poem.

Herbert Bowman of Vinalhaven and Ephraim P. Colson of this city were among the graduates from Bates college this week.

Benjamin H. Keller of Appleton received the degree of M. D. from the Medical School of Maine Wednesday.

Piles get quick and certain relief from Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment. Please note it is made alone for Piles, and its action is positive and certain. Itching, painful, protruding or blind piles disappear like magic by its use. Large nickel sized glass jar at Yale, Roscoe Hopper, Martinsville, who will do graduate work; Charles W. Snow, Spruce Head, who will become instructor in debating and argumentation at New York University. Mr. Snow had the class poem.

MRS. ELIZABETH KALLOCH MERO. Elizabeth Kalloch Mero, widow of the late Deacon Eli S. Mero, of Augusta, died very suddenly of heart disease Sunday morning. Her husband died four years ago, and for the last two years Mrs. Mero has made her home with her son-in-law, Charles R. Hall, where she was kindly cared for, and where her gracious presence ever made her welcome. Two children, Hattie, the wife of Mr. Hall, and M. H. Mero of Augusta survive. She was an aunt of Hon. George E. Macomber.

Mrs. Mero and her husband were born in Warren, and removed to Augusta in 1862. They were both converted in Warren in the great revival of 1867, and joined the First Baptist church in Augusta immediately on going there. Mrs. Mero was among the three oldest members of the church. She was born on the 8th of July, 1823, and lacked only a few days of being 84 years of age. The Kennebec Journal says:

"Mrs. Mero came of the vigorous and pronounced Kalloch stock, that so thoroughly made its impression upon the religious, social and business life of Knox and adjoining counties. She was a woman of ready wit, quick to answer a question, full of resources, and with a heart and spirit that should ever characterize the true follower of Christ. With a broad and benevolent fellowship in all that took in the Christians of every denomination, she felt most at home and was seen at her best in the charmed circle of her own Baptist fold. Sorrows she had, and sore bereavements—one the loss of her oldest son by the explosion of the Buaine, in Havana harbor—but these did not disturb her faith in Him who doeth all things well. Her long life was a benediction; her death almost a translation. To spend the most of that bright June Sunday with her beloved in the Heavenly Glory, to bathe in the River of Life, where old age finds the fountain of perpetual youth."

The funeral of Mrs. Mero was held Tuesday. The services were conducted by Rev. B. P. Hope, pastor of the Winthrop street Baptist church, and the bearers were Rev. B. P. Hope, Walker Dana, E. N. Carver and Edwin P. Weston. The interment was made in the family lot at Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

Within 24 hours after the burial of the late Adelbert M. Marks thieves stole from the grave costly ribbons with which the floral tributes were bound. Many complaints of a similar nature come from those whose loved ones lie in Achorn cemetery. An example ought to be made of the mean skunks who would desecrate the home of the dead.

W. Frank Pierce of Vinalhaven stole a march upon his friends Thursday by coming to this city and taking with himself a wife. The bride was formerly Mary Frances McDonald of Lynn, Mass. and the ceremony was performed Thursday evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. John Richardson, Knox street. Rev. W. W. Carver officiated. Mr. Pierce is in the employ of the Bodwell Granite Co. at Vinalhaven, but counts his friends here on the mainland by the score. He will be the recipient of many kind congratulations.

Bath Times: Seth Chilton Crocker of New York City, general manager of the S. C. Crocker Pen Co., which manufactures the famous Crocker fountain pens, has formed a partnership with Wallace E. Shaw of this city under the firm name of the Crocker-Shaw Co. and has leased the John O. Shaw store on Front street and will carry on the stationery business so long conducted at the stand. Mr. Crocker has spent a good part of his time for many years in Maine. He married a Rockland girl and is extremely fond of this state. Mr. and Mrs. Crocker expect to make their home in Bath.

The business and professional men of Rockland and Thomaston play in Thomaston next Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 for the benefit of Knox hospital and incidentally the losing team pays for the supper for both teams at the Knox hotel. The teams are not to be made up of clerks or employees, but of real bona fide business and professional men, most of whom were good men in their day. In addition to supplying the hospital with something in the way of funds it is not impossible that the game may be the means of furnishing some subjects. Rockland should send a good delegation of rosters to sustain the courage of its Past Masters.

Bangor Commercial: The new turbine steamer Camden which began her regular trips on the Boston-Bangor route last week is causing some damage to floating docks and boats along the river as it goes by. Owing to the tremendous suction and swirl which it takes in the stern of the ship, the river has suffered a little since the new steamer went on the route. At Hampden the floating dock for the ferry which is held together by large iron chains was broken apart as if it had been made of paper when the Camden went by the other day, and there have been instances of the same kind at other places on the river.

The Knox County Automobile Club will present the following program in connection with the races at Knox Park July 4: Automobile parade, at the cars in the club; auto snake trail contest, prize $25; touring car contest, four people in each car, each car to stop in front of grand stand, at the end of the first 1-2 mile, all alight drink a glass of water each, re-enter cars and finish race, prize $50; exhibition with lady driver, prize $25; Cadillac auto race between a Rockland car and driver and an out of town car and driver, prize $50; exhibition race by eight cars, two Columbia, two Jacksons, two Corbina and two Stearns. All auto contests to be between heats of the horse races.

Twenty-five years ago last week the turbine steamer Camden made her initial trip on the Boston and Bangor route. Among the officials we find A. H. Hanson as freight clerk. Last week the turbine steamer Camden made its first trip on the same route, and among those on board was the same Mr. Hanson, now assistant to President Austin. Whether he remembered that was the 25th anniversary, or not, we do not know, but the fact is interesting to note, especially in view of the promotion. A note of regret is sounded in this connection by old patrons of the line, who now miss from the various steamers practically all of the officials they knew and liked so well 25 or 26 years ago. Frank Pierce and Capt. Ezra Curtis are about the only survivors.

A handsome line of goods for Wedding Gifts at Spess's, 408 Main street. Cut Glass, Sterling Silver, Impressed China, Bric-a-brac, etc. make up a fine assortment from which to select.

The new Swan's Island Odd Fellows lodge will visit Knox Lodge next Monday night.

Rev. Robert Sutcliffe lectured at Pemaquid Thursday night before an attentive and well-pleased audience.

A new house is being erected on Little street by the Moffitt estate, replacing the one destroyed on the night of the past factory fire.

D. G. Richards of Skowhegan will give a Spiritualist lecture in the West Meadows chapel next Sunday evening at 7.15 o'clock. All are invited.

Knox Lodge of Odd Fellows conferred the initiatory degree upon Chester Backliffe, Monday night, and received one application for membership.

Children's Day will be observed at the Universalist church Sunday. Recitations by the children and a short address by the pastor.

Patrolman Whitten and Special Officer Richards took an insane patient to the Augusta asylum Wednesday. Mr. Richards' diplomacy and powers of persuasion were turned to good account.

Lineman Stewart of the Western Union says that Tuesday night's electrical storm was one of the worst for years, in point of damage to the telegraph lines. He worked all Wednesday forenoon before he had a Boston wire in commission. Wednesday evening's storm again put the telegraph wires on the bum.

News has been received here of the marriage of Willis K. Porter and Annie Louise McCrum, which took place June 22 in St. Michael's church, Brooklyn. The groom is a son of the late John B. Porter of this city, and has an excellent position in New York as linotype operator. His many friends will extend their best wishes.

Aug. 21 and 22 are the dates of the field day exercises to be held in this city by the Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias. This is a state affair and Knights of Pythias will be here from all corners of Maine. There will be a competitive drill for the colonel's cup, which trophy is now held by King Company of Augusta.

It has now for some years been the custom of the Y. M. C. A. to hold a patriotic service on the Sunday preceding the Fourth of July, and this custom will also be followed this year. The speakers will be Gifford B. Butler and Col. E. K. Gould, and the singing will be in charge of Miss Mildred Clark. Women as well as men are invited to this service which will be held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Nash, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Morse and Mrs. Edith Brown of Megallowick Grange, Camden; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Benner, Mr. and Mrs. Warren B. Gardner attended Waldo County Pomona Tuesday. It met with Tranquillity Grange in Lincolnville. Mrs. Gardner gave a reading, "The Whistling Regiment," with Mrs. Edith Brown as accompanist. There was an attendance of about 300. The Pomona degree was conferred upon 19 candidates.

This is all based on the assumption that there will be a joint convention Monday night. The Law Court has rendered no decision as yet, but one is expected any moment, and the Republicans feel that it will be favorable to them despite the Opinion's sne

CHAPTER III.

PHILIP descended the stairs. He was almost choking now from another cause than strangulation. The steam pouring in through the fractured window panes was stifling. He took off his coat, first removing from an inner pocket the bundle of letters found under Mrs. Anson's pillow, and carefully stuffed the worn garment into the largest cavity. By this means he succeeded somewhat in shutting out the vapor as well as the lurid light that still flared red in the back yard.

The lightning had ceased totally, and the improvised blind plunged the room into impenetrable darkness. He felt his way to the stairs and found the candle, which he relighted. The rain beating on the roofs and on the outer pavements combined with the weird sounds in the inclosed yard to make a terrifying racket, but it was not likely that a youth who attributed his escape from a loathsome death, self-inflicted, to the direct interposition of Providence in his behalf would yield to any sentimental fears on that account. Indeed, although quite weak from hunger, he felt an unaccountable elation of spirits, a new born desire to live and justify his mother's confidence in him, a sense of power to achieve that which hitherto seemed impossible.

He even broke into a desultory whistling as he bent over the hearth and resumed the laying of the fire abandoned five minutes earlier with such sudden soul weariness. The candle, too, burned with cheery glimmer, as if pleased with the disappearance of its formidable competitor. Fortunately he had some coal in the house—his chief supply was stored in a small bin at the other side of the yard, beyond the burial place of the raging, steaming meteor and consequently quite unapproachable.

Soon the fire burned merrily, and the coffee stall keeper's recipe for using coffee grounds was put into practice. Philip had neither sugar nor milk, but the hot liquid smelled well, and he was now so cold and numb that he had such an intense sensation where he might have worn a belt that some crusts of bread, softened by immersion in the dark compound, earned keener appreciation than was ever given in later days to the most costly dishes of famous restaurants yet untried.

After he had eaten he dried his damp garments and changed his soaked boots for a pair so worn that they scarcely held together, but their dryness was comforting. An odd feeling of contentment, largely induced by the grateful heat of the fire, rendered his actions leisurely. Quite half an hour elapsed before he thought of peeping through the back window to ascertain the progress of external events. The rain was not now pelting down with abnormal fury. It was still falling, but with the quiet persistence that marks—in London parlance—"a genuine wet day." The steam had almost vanished. When he removed his coat from the broken panes he saw with surprise that the flagstones in the yard were dry within a circle of two feet around the hole made by the meteor. Such drops as fell within that area were instantly obliterated, and tiny jets of vapor from the hole itself betrayed the presence of the fiery object beneath.

His boyish curiosity being thoroughly aroused, he drew an old sack over his head and shouldered an unlocked door which led into the yard from a tiny scullery and cautiously approached the place where the meteor had plowed its way into the ground. The stones were littered with debris, but the velocity of the heavy mass had been so great that a comparatively clean cut was made through the pavement.

The air was warm with the hot breath of an oven, and it was as much as Philip could bear when he stood on the brink of the hole and peeped in. At a good depth, nearly half his own height he estimated, he saw a round ball firmly imbedded in the earth. It was dully red, with its surface all cracks and fissures as the result of the water poured onto it. Much larger than a football, it seemed to him at first sight to be the angry eye of some colossal demon glaring up at him from a dark socket. But the boy was absolutely a stranger to fear. He procured the handle of a mop and prodded the meteor with it. The surface felt hard and brittle. Large sections broke away, though they did not crumble, and he received a sharp reminder of the potency of the heat still stored below when the wood burst into sudden flame.

This ended his investigations for the night. He used the sacking to block up the window, replenished the fire, set his coat to dry and dragged his mattress from the bedroom to the foot of the fire. The warmth within and without the house had made him intolerably drowsy, and he fell asleep while murmuring his prayers, a practice abandoned since the hour of his mother's death.

In reality Philip was undergoing a novel sort of Turkish bath, and the perspiration induced thereby probably that had its advent been delayed a second or two the precise locality selected for its impact would not have mattered much to him.

"I am jolly glad that thing didn't fall on my head."

"I wonder what it is," he went on. "Is it worth anything? Perhaps if I dig it out I may be able to sell it as a curiosity."

A moment's reflection told him, however, that he would not be able to enter it that day, even if he possessed the requisite implements. His lower side it was probably still red hot. Through the soles of his boots, broken as they were, he could easily feel the heat of the ground, so the experiment must be deferred for twenty-four hours, perhaps longer. At any rate, he was sure that his mysterious visitor represented a realizable asset, and the knowledge gave him a sudden distaste for coffee grounds and stale crusts. He resolved to spend his remaining three halfpence on a breakfast and at the same time make some guarded inquiries as to the nature and possible cash value of the meteor itself. Evidently its fall had attracted no public attention. The fury of the elements and the subsequent heavy rain were effective safeguards in this respect, and Johnson's News, marked out for demolition a fortnight later, were practically deserted now day and night.

Philip did not then know that London had already made talk about in the recorded incidents of the two storms. The morning newspapers were hysterical with headlines announcing the fall of a meteor, the first in this country since the time of the great meteorite of 1803, and the fall of a meteorite in the East End, possessed the very genesis of the mystery, yet the web of fate was destined to weave a spell that would deftly close his lips.

Meanwhile he wanted his breakfast. He gathered thirty fair sized, white pebbles and a few jagged lumps of the ironlike material. These he wrapped in a piece of newspaper, screwed up the small package tightly and placed it in his trousers' pocket. Thinking deeply about the awesome incidents of the previous night, he donned his coat and did not notice the packet of letters lying in the chair. Never before had these documents left his possession. The door was locked and the key in his pocket before he missed them. It was in his mind to turn back. In another second he would have obeyed the impulse had not a mighty gust of wind swept through the yard and carried his tattered cap into the passage. That settled it. Philip ran after his headgear and so was blown into a strange sea of events.

"They are quite safe there," he thought. "In any case, it will be best not to carry them about in future. They get so frayed, and some day I may want them." Emerging from the haven of the Mews, he found the untidy life of the Mile End road eddying in restless confusion through a gale. The gaunt, high walls surrounding his secluded dwelling had sheltered him from the blustering March wind that was now drying the streets and creating much ill-temper in the hearts of carter, stall owners and girls with large hats and full skirts. In a word, everything that could be flapped or shaken or rudely swept anywhere out of its rightful place was dealt with accordingly. In one instance a heavy tarpaulin was lifted clean off a wagon and settling lodged over the heads of the driver and horses of a passing omnibus. They were not extricated from its close embrace without some difficulty and a great quantity of severe yet cogent remarks by the wagoner and the driver, assisted by the bus conductor and various passengers.

Philip laughed heartily for the first time since his mother's death. He waited until the driver and the wagoner had exchanged their farewell compliments; then he made off briskly toward an establishment where three halfpence would purchase a cup of coffee and a bun.

In ten minutes he felt much refreshed, and his busy mind reverted to the mysterious package he carried. Thinking it best to seek the counsel of an older head, he went to O'Brien's shop. The old man was taking down the shutters and found the task none too easy. Without a word Philip helped him, and soon the pensioner was waving his spectacles in the shelter of the shop.

"I dunno what the weather is comin' to at all at all," he grumbled. "Last night was like the takin' up the Rodan, an' this mornin' reminds me of crossin' the bay of Biscay." "It certainly was a fearful thunder-storm," said Philip. "Faix, boy, that's a three word. It was just like old times in the hills in India, where the devil himself holds court some nights. But what's the matter? Didn't you get that job?" Philip laughed again. "I am not sure yet," he replied. "I really came in to ask you what this is."

With his hand in his pocket, he had untwisted the paper and taken out a white pebble, which he now handed to O'Brien.

The old man took it, smelt it and adjusted his glasses for a critical examination.

"It ain't aluin," he announced. "No, I think not." "An' it ain't glass," "Probably not."

"Where did yer get it?" "I found it lying on the pavement." O'Brien scratched his head. "'Tis a queer looking object, anyhow. What good is it?"

"I cannot tell you. I thought that possibly it might have some value."

"What! A scrap of white stone like that. Arrah, what's come over ye?" "There is no harm in asking, is there? Some one should be able to tell me what it is made of."

Philip from his small store of physical geography knew that meteors were articles of sufficient rarity to attract attention, and he was tenacious withal.

"The best man to judge, he must understand about stones," he went on. "Maybe. But I don't see what's the use. 'Tis a sheer waste of time. But if ye're set on findin' out go to a big man. These German Jews round about here are omahuns. They don't know a watch from a clock, an' if they did they'd chate ye."

"I never thought of that, yet I ought to know by this time. Thank you. I will go into the city."

He took the pebble, which he placed in his waistcoat pocket. Walking briskly, he traversed some part of the sorrowful journey of barely twelve hours earlier. What had happened to change his mood he did not know and scarcely troubled to inquire. Last night he hurried through these streets in a frenzied quest for death. Now he strode along full of hope, joyous in the confidence of life and youth. His one dominant thought was that his mother had protected him, had snatched him from the dark gate of eternity. Oddly enough, he did not feel more stress on his escape from the meteor than on the accident that prevented his contemplated suicide. This latter idea had vanished with the madness that induced it. Philip was sane again, morally and mentally. He was keenly anxious to justify his mother's trust in him. The blustering wind, annoying to most wayfarers, only aroused in him a spirit of resistance, of fortitude. He breasted it so manfully that when at last he paused at the door of a great jewelry establishment in Ludgate Hill his face was flushed and his manner eager and animated.

He opened the door, but was rudely brought back to a sense of his surroundings by the suspicious question of a shopwalker.

"Now, boy, what do you want here?" The unconscious stress in the man's words was certainly borne out by the contrast between Philip, a social pariah in attire, and the wealth of gold and precious stones cut off from him by panes of thick glass and iron bars.

What, indeed, did this outcast want there? Confused by the sudden demand and no less by its complete obviousness, Philip flushed and stammered: "I—er—only wished to obtain some information, sir," he answered.

Like all others, the shopman was amazed by the difference between the boy's manners and his appearance.

"Information?" he repeated in his surprise. "What information can we give you?"

The wealth of the firm oppressed this man. He could only speak in accents of adulation where the shop was concerned.

Philip produced his white pebble. "What is this?" he said.

The directness of the query again took the shopman aback. Without a word, he bent and examined the stone. Professional instinct mastered all other considerations.

"You must apply to that department," he majestically waved his hand toward a side counter. Philip obeyed silently and approached a small, elderly personage, a man with clever, kindly eyes, who was submitting to microscopic examination a number of tiny stones spread out on a chamois leather folding case. He quietly removed the case when his gaze rested on the boy.

"Well?" he said blankly, wondering why on earth the skilled shopwalker had sent such a disreputable urchin to him. Philip was now quite collected in his wits. He held out the pebble, with a more detailed statement.

"I found this," he said. "I thought that it might be valuable, and a friend advised me to bring it here. Will you kindly tell me what it is?"

The man behind the counter stared at him for a moment, but he reached over for the stone. Without a word he placed it beneath the microscope and gave it a very brief examination. Then he pressed it against his cheek.

"I found it where it had fallen on the pavement."

"Are you sure?" "Quite sure."

"Strange!" was the muttered comment, and Philip began to understand that his meteor possessed attributes hitherto unsuspected.

"What is it?" he inquired after a pause.

"A meteoric diamond."

"A meteoric diamond?" "Yes."

"Is it worth much?" "A great deal. Probably some hundreds of pounds."

Philip felt his face growing pale. The dirty-white, small stone worth hundreds of pounds! Yet in his pocket he had twenty-nine other specimens, many of them much larger than the one chosen haphazard for inspection.

In the back yard of his tenement lay heaps of them, scattered about the pavement like hailstones after a shower, while the meteor—fact mass of them, also became somewhat faint and leaned against the glass case that surrounded the counter.

"Is that really true?" was all that he could say.

The expert valuer of diamonds smiled. His first impulse was to send for the police, but he knew that meteoric diamonds did fall to earth occasionally, and he believed the boy's story. Moreover, the thing was such a rarity and of such value that the holder must be fully able to account for its possession before he could dispose of it. So his tone was not unkindly as he replied:

"It is quite true, but if you want to ascertain its exact value you should go to a Hatton Garden merchant, and he, most probably, would make you a fair offer. It has to be cut and polished, you know, before it becomes salable, and I must warn you that most rigid inquiry will be made as to how it came into your hands."

"It fell from heaven!" was the wholly unexpected answer, for Philip was shaken and hardly master of his faculties.

"Yes, yes, I know. Personally, I believe you or you would be in custody at this moment. Take it to Messrs. Isaacstein & Co., Hatton Garden. Say I sent you—Mr. Wilson is my name—and make your best terms with Mr. Isaacstein. He will treat you quite fairly. But, again, be sure and tell the truth, as he will investigate your story fully before he is satisfied as to its accuracy."

Philip, walking through dreamland, quitted the shop. He mingled with the throng and drifted into Farringdon road.

"A diamond—worth hundreds of pounds!" he repeated mechanically. "Then what is the whole meteor worth, and what am I worth?"

CHAPTER IV.

THE keen, strong March wind soon blew the clouds from his brain. He did not hurry toward Hatton Garden. He sauntered, rather, with his hand clutched on the tiny parcel in his pocket, the parcel which had suddenly been endowed with such magic potentialities. It was the instinct to guard a treasure of great value that led to this involuntary action. He was preoccupied, disturbed, vaguely striving to grasp a vision that seemed to elude his exact comprehension.

What did it all mean? Was it really possible that he, Philip Anson, orphaned, beggared, practically a starving tramp, should have the riches of Golconda showered upon him in this mad fashion? If the small stone he had shown to the jeweler were worth hundreds, then some of those in the paper were worth thousands, while as for the stone in the back yard of his house—well, imagination bogged at the effort to appraise it. The thought begot a sense of caution, of reserve, of well reasoned determination not to reveal his secret to anybody. Perhaps it would be best not to take Messrs. Isaacstein & Co. wholly into his confidence. He would simply show them the stone he had exhibited to Mr. Wilson and take the best price they offered. Then, with the money in his possession, he could effect a much needed change in his appearance, visit them again, and gradually increase his supply of diamonds until he had obtained more money than he could possibly spend during many years.

Above all else it was necessary that the meteor should be removed to a safer place than Johnson's Mews. Philip had scrupled about appropriating it. Lords of the manor and crown rights he had never heard of.

His mother, watching his every action from some Elysian height, had sent the diamond loaded messenger as a token of her love and care. It was his, and no man should rob him of it. It behooved him to be sparing of explanations and sturdy in defense of his property.

A good deal depended on the forthcoming interview, and he wished he could convert a small fraction of the wealth in his pocket into a few honest pennies with the king's head on them. The excitement and exercise had made him hungry again. His breakfast was not of ample proportions, and his meals of yesterday had been of the scantiest. It would be well to face the diamond merchants with the easy confidence that springs from a satisfied appetite. Yet how to manage it? He was sorry now he had not borrowed a sixpence from O'Brien. The old soldier would certainly have lent it to him. He even thought of returning to the Mile End road to secure the loan, but he happened to remember that the day was Saturday, and it was probable that the Hatton Garden offices would close early. It was then nearly 11 o'clock, and he could not risk the delay of the long, double journey.

At that instant a savory smell was wafted to him. He was passing a small restaurant where sausages and onions sizzled gratefully in large tin trays, and he was tempted to stop and eat. He was hungry, and he was tired. He was a boy, and he was a boy.

He walked up to the pair.

"I have not got any money just now," he said to the restaurant keeper, "but if you will let me have something to eat I will gladly come back this afternoon and pay you double."

Neither man spoke at first. Philip was always unconscious of the quaint discrepancy between his style of speech and his attire. He used to resent bitterly the astonishment exhibited by strangers, but today he was far removed above these considerations, and he backed his request with a pleasant smile.

The fat man grew apoplectic and turned his eyes to the sky.

"Well, I'm," he spluttered.

The greengrocer laughed, and Philip blushed.

"Do you refuse?" he said, with his downy manner and direct stare.

"Well, of all the cool cheek!" The stout person's feelings were too much for him. He could find no other words.

"It is a fair offer," persisted the boy. "You don't think I mean to swindle you, surely?"

"Well, there! I never did!" But the greengrocer intervened.

"You're a sharp lad," he said, "but I don't want a job?"

"No," was the short reply. "I want something to eat."

"Dash my buttons, an' you're a like ly sort of kid to get it too. In you go I'll pay the bill. Lord lumme, it'll do me good to see you."

"Mr. Judd are you mad?" demanded his neighbor, whose breath had returned to him.

"Not a bit of it. The bloomin' kid can't get through a bob's worth if he bursts himself. 'Er, I'll bet you two bob 'e pays up."

"Done! Walk in, sir. Wo'll you be pleased to 'ave, sir?"

Philip's indignation at the restaurant keeper's sarcasm yielded to his wish to see him annihilated later in the day. Moreover, the sausages really smelt excellent, and he was now ravenous. He entered the shop and gave his orders with a quiet dignity that astounded the proprietor and hugely delighted the greengrocer, who, in the interval of the business, kept peeping at him through the window. Philip ate steadily, and the bill amounted to ninepence, which his ally paid cheerfully.

The boy held out his hand.

"Thank you, Mr. Judd," he said frankly. "I will return without fail. I will not insult you by offering more than the amount you have advanced for me, but some day I may be able to render you good service in repayment."

Then he walked off toward the viaduct steps, and Mr. Judd looked after him.

"Talks like a little gentleman," he does. If my little Jimmie 'ad lived 'e would 'a bin just about his age. Lord lumme, I 'ope 'e had turned up again, an' not for the sake of the bloomin' ninepence, neither. Tomatoes, mum?"

Yes'm. Fixed in this mornin'."

After crossing Holborn viaduct Philip stood for a little while gazing into the showroom of a motor agency. It was not that he was interested in Panhard or De Dion cars, then but little known to the general public in England, but rather that he wished to rehearse carefully the programme to be followed with Mr. Isaacstein. With a sagacity unlooked for in one of his years, he decided that the meteor should not be mentioned at all. Of course the diamond merchant would instantly recognize the stone as a meteoric diamond and would demand its earthly pedigree. Philip resolved to adhere to the simple statement that it was his own property and that any reasonable inquiry might be made in all quarters where meteoric diamonds were obtainable as to whether or not such a stone was missing. Meanwhile he could obtain from Mr. Isaacstein a receipt acknowledging its custody and a small advance of money far below its real worth, leaving the completion of the transaction until a later date. The question of giving or withholding his address if it were asked for was a difficult one to settle offhand. Perhaps the course of events would permit him to keep Johnson's Mews altogether out of the record, and a more reputable habitation would be provided once he had the requisite funds.

Thinking he had successfully tackled all the problems that would demand solution, Philip wasted no more time. He entered Hatton Garden and had not gone past many of its dingy houses until he saw a large brass plate bearing the legend, "Isaacstein & Co., Diamond Merchants, Kimberley, Amsterdam and London."

He entered the office and was instantly confronted by a big nosed youth who surveyed him through a grille with an arched opening in it to admit letters and small parcels.

"Is Mr. Isaacstein in?" said Philip.

"Oah, yes," grinned the other. "Will you kindly tell him I wish to see him?"

"Oah, yes." There was a joke lurking somewhere in the atmosphere, but the young man had not caught its drift yet. The gaunt and unkempt visitor was evidently burling the accent of such genteel people as came to the office on business.

Philip waited a few seconds. The boy behind the grille filled in the interval by copying an address into the stamp book.

"Why do you not tell Mr. Isaacstein I am here?" he said at last.

"Oah, yes. You'll be funny, eh?" The other smirked over the hidden humor of the situation, and Philip understood that if he would see the great man of the firm he must adopt a more emphatic tone.

"I had better warn you that Mr. Wilson of Messrs. Grant & Sons, Ludgate Hill, sent me here to see Mr. Isaacstein. Am I to go back to Mr. Wilson and say that the office boy refuses to admit me?"

There was a sting in the description, coming from such a speaker.

"Look 'ere," was the angry retort. "Go away and blay, vil you? I'm plizzy."

Then Philip reached quickly through the little arch, grabbed a handful of shirt, tie and waistcoat and dragged the big nose and thick lips violently against the wires of the grille.

"Will you do what I ask or shall I try and pull you through?" he said quietly.

THIS PAPER AND JAMESTOWN

When the World's Fair was held at Chicago in 1893 this paper gave a free trip to that exhibition, to a young lady who was the successful candidate in a voting contest.

In 1900 we sent two young ladies to the Paris Exposition, giving them also a European tour, the tourists also being winners in a voting contest.

In 1904 we sent four young ladies to the St. Louis Exposition, two of them winners in a voting contest and each taking a companion.

In all cases every expense of the trips was borne by this paper. Every comfort and luxury of travel was given the young ladies, and from the moment they left Rockland until they landed back home they were our guests. It is hardly necessary to add that the trips were occasions of the utmost delight to the participants.

Now we propose to do another good thing, to wit: We are to organize a voting contest, through which we will send to the great Jamestown Tercentennial Exposition that is to be held this year four persons, two principals, one a resident of Rockland, one a resident of Knox county outside of Rockland. These two will be the winners in the voting and each will be privileged to invite a friend to also make the trip.

Every expense of these four persons will be borne by The Courier-Gazette. This will include some striking features, as follows:

(1) Transportation, Boston to Jamestown, including a magnificent ocean trip in one of the palatial steamers of the Merchants & Miners Transportation Co.

(2) Luxurious entertainment at the Inside Inn, within the exposition grounds.

(3) Three days' stay at the exposition, with steamer trips to the Naval Fleet, New York, Portsmouth, Newport News, Hampton, Old Point Comfort, Fort Monroe, etc.

(4) Sail up the Potomac to Washington, with visit to the sights of the national capital.

(5) A day in Philadelphia, visiting the mint, Independence Hall, Betsy Ross house and other historic spots.

(6) On to New York and homeward via Fall River line.

(7) Every luxury of travel and hotels from Rockland back to Rockland, ten days of glorious travel, and sight-seeing.

Everything will be first-class and on a liberal scale. It will be a great vacation outing for four worthy persons—congenial persons, of course, for each winner can take along the person he or she would most prefer for traveling companion. Anybody may enter the lists. What a great opportunity for professional men or women, clerks, school teachers, to get a vacation trip!

MISTAKES DYSPEPSIA MAY CAUSE

Many Sufferers from Stomach Trouble Notice Derangements of Other Organs and Become Alarmed—Symptoms Disappear When the Stomach is Toned Up.

Indigestion and stomach trouble show many symptoms that are mistaken for other complaints. The dyspeptic may easily come to believe that he is a sufferer from heart trouble if wind on the stomach causes irregular action of the vital organs. The lungs and kidneys are sometimes affected also by stomach trouble.

Heartburn, hiccup, nightmare and waterbrash, or sour rising in the throat, are all symptoms of stomach disturbance which disappear when the cause is reached and the stomach toned up.

Mrs. W. T. Clark, of 905 West Park street, Rome, N. Y., says: "I had gastritis, which brought on sinking spells for about an hour every morning. I was very weak and nervous and finally was compelled to take to my bed. My illness lasted about four months. For about half the time I was confined to my bed. I had suffered greatly from the stomach trouble and nervousness, which alarmed me most was the sinking feeling of the heart."

"I had read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and when some of my friends recommended the pills very highly I decided to give them a trial. I bought one box and by the time this was used I was feeling much better. I felt better but continued taking the pills until I had used twelve boxes. I still keep the pills in the house for I believe that they are a splendid medicine. I always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to my friends who are ailing for I know that they will do all that is claimed for them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have corrected serious disorders of the stomach, have revitalized the nervous system and restored to health sufferers from severe disorders of the blood and nerves. For rheumatism, indigestion, nervous headaches, many forms of weakness and debility, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are recommended even if ordinary remedies have been tried without relief.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on six boxes for $2.00, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

WALDOBORO

The most terrific thunder storm ever experienced in Waldoboro burst over the village Tuesday evening when for an hour lightning was incessant and nature and household furniture and human life followed in rapid succession. No serious damage was done in the village although lightning struck in several places, among them the dwelling of Mrs. J. S. Hatch.

Telephone and electric light apparatus of the city was destroyed. The dwelling of the late Samuel Farnsworth at South Waldoboro was struck but did not burn. The large barn of John M. Winslow in Nobleboro was burned with three horses and other stock and all his farming implements. The barn of Mrs. Edward K. Howard in Bremen was also burned.

In a class of thirty-one which was graduated from the Cony High school, Augusta, last week, J. L. who had attained the highest rank in school work, were assigned the honor of participating in the graduation program. Among these appears the name of a bright Waldoboro young lady, Miss Grace Austin York, whose name was Longfellow's "Three Heroines." The portraits of the eleven, including Miss York, appeared in the Kennebec Journal of June 22. She is to be congratulated upon her success in school work.

Granville O. Walz is building a summer cottage at Back Cove, South Waldoboro.

Mrs. Doris York and Miss Grace York have returned from Augusta.

Guy Irving Walz has returned from engagements in the west where he has been in demand as a singer in evangelistic work. His last engagement was in Chicago.

Miss Christina Hall of Rockland, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Richard Saville. E. E. Chapman is home from New York.

Mrs. Elizabeth Haskell of Godfrey, Ill., and Miss Fitch of New Jersey, are at P. H. Beall's.

Miss M. J. Beall has been added to the staff of clerks in Austin's department store.

The approach of another thunder shower caused people to hasten home Wednesday evening, but it did not come near enough to frighten anybody.

P. E. Storer's motor boat is nearly ready for the water.

The village streets with their majestic elms and beautiful maples and chestnuts, are now in the most attractive season.

Misses Jessie and Faye Keene are home from Massachusetts.

L. W. Cleveland of Portland, has been in town.

Miss Winnie Steel is home from Medway, Mass.

GREEN ISLAND.

Maynard Bray is seriously ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Vin Testa, Maggie, Beatrice and Grace Shields and Marguerite Ewell of Hurdville, recently visited friends on this island.

Mrs. L. E. Farnham while coming from the cellar Sunday morning accidentally caught her foot, causing the door to fall on it. For about two hours she did not feel any bad effects, but the pain became intense and she suffered dreadfully for about six hours. It is swollen badly now, but she is able to step on it again. It was quite a disappointment to her, not to be able to go on the excursion to Castine Monday.

Miss Velena N. Bradford left on the 10:10 train this Friday forenoon for Seattle, Wash., where she is to be married soon to Vernon M. re. Both are former residents of Friendship. Miss Bradford for nearly six years has been treasurer of the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Society of the Advent Christian church, making her home in this city with the president of that society, Mrs. Sarah H. Taylor. Mr. May was formerly quartermaster of the steamship Shawmut sailing between Pacific ports, Siberia, Japan, China and the Philippines. At that time the Shawmut was the largest steamer on the Pacific coast.

Mr. Morse is now in the employ of the Tacoma Ice Co., having been connected with that corporation three years. Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Bradford, Miss Bradford was tendered a farewell reception by some 25 members of the Advent Christian church and other friends, the affair being under the management of the Loyal Workers, one of the church societies to which Miss Bradford has been the most devoted attorney. Refreshments were served and the only marring feature of the happy occasion was the thought that a popular member was so soon to depart on a long journey. Miss Bradford was presented with a silver spoon, Dr. A. W. Taylor making a happy speech in behalf of the donors. The dining room was handsomely decorated with bridal daisies and hyacinths. Punch was served by Mrs. Evelyn Phillips and Miss Leila W. Taylor. During the evening several piano selections were rendered by Miss Grace Follett.

SULLIVAN-SCANLIN

St. Bernard's Catholic church of Rockland was the scene of a very pretty wedding Wednesday morning, the contracting parties being Miss Anna Elizabeth Scanlin of Thomaston and Jeremiah Richard Sullivan of Rockland.

The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Flynn, pastor of St. Bernard's church. The bride was beautifully attired in white silk tulle with tulle, with Valenciennes lace trimmings, her veil being caught with bride roses and maiden hair fern. She carried an ivory prayer book and crystal and gold roses. The bride was attended by her sister Helena M. Scanlin, becomingly gowned in light blue Eolienne, with lace trimmings, and carried pink carnations.

The groom was attended by Joseph M. Scanlin, brother of the bride. The ushers were Miss Mary Belle Cullen and Mary H. Nicholson of Thomaston and Miss Mary C. Sullivan and Miss Nellie E. Sullivan of Rockland. They were becomingly gowned in white Swiss muslin and lace trimmings.

Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan were the recipients of many beautiful and costly gifts, consisting of silver, china, cut glass, and wedding cake. The couple left on the evening train for a short honeymoon in Boston. On their return they will reside in Stockton. Their host of friends in Rockland and Thomaston wish them much joy and happiness in their new life.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Henry E. Dixey will be a most welcome leading attraction at Keith's next week. He is to play one of his congenial roles, David Garrick, in the classic one act comedy of the same name. Mr. Dixey's engagement is for one week only. "Stop, Look and Listen" is the title of one of the most successful plays of the season. It is most ably played by Miss May Tully and company. Herbert Cyril, an English music hall singer will make his Boston debut and is bound to score heavily with his bright songs and winning personality. The "light acts" will include Rose Wentworth's Equestrian Novelty, the most attractive exhibition of "horsemanship" ever given on vaudeville stage, and LaVeen and Cross, two phenomenal athletes in muscular poising and remarkable feats of strength. Howard and Howard, "The Messenger Boy and the Thespian," as clever character singers and parodists as can be named, will deliver a bundle of new material.

The balance of the program will include Del-A-Phone, the famous mimic; Fentelle and Carr, conversational comedians; Smith, Bowman and company, in ragtime diversions; The Crazy, versatile musicians; Peyser and McDonald, acrobatic comedians; Maxine Wells, balladist; Walsh, Lynch and company in a comedy sketch, and the Kinetograph with new pictures.

WAQUOIT OPEN.

The Waquoit, Mrs. Lillian C. Ross, proprietor, at Northport Campground, is now open for the season. This is one of the most popular houses at this resort and has been thoroughly repaired and renovated. A specialty is made of lobsters, fish and clams. The rates are very reasonable and every guest is guaranteed a good time.

TWO SPARRING MATCHES

Rockland Fans Got Stomach Full of Pugilism This Week—Twin Sullivan's Visit Other Sporting Items.

Waning interest in sparring matches was manifested in the slim attendance at Parwell opera house Wednesday night, when only a few hundred sports gathered to see Jack Twin Sullivan do his six-round stunt with Dave Sawyer. The sports have been paying their money to see lots of the lesser lights, but for some season they didn't feel like paying to see the man who is one of the best drawing cards in the country today. To sum it up briefly they were afraid they were going to be faked the way they were the night before.

The Rockland Social and Athletic Club, which had charge of this exhibition had all the advertised artists present save "Fighting Eddie" Harrigan, who was said to be suffering from the effects of a sunstroke at his home in Lewiston. Billy Smith went in against Jimmy Doherty and Spin Mahaney stopped the bout in the fourth round to save underlings.

Next came Kid Neary of Boston and Young Cunningham of Lewiston. Neary had the better of it for three rounds, but Cunningham ended stronger.

Tom Sawyer's Exhibition.

A heavy storm, coupled with the fact that many of the fans were saving their money to see Twin Sullivan, was responsible for a small attendance at Tom Sawyer's sparring exhibition in the Arcade Tuesday night.

The preliminary bout was a very lively scrap between Young Kenney and Kid Fortier, who appear to have picked up quite a pugilistic education from some quarter or other. They squared away at each other in true professional style, and had the uppercut, cross-counters and jabs down to perfection. The boys were terribly in earnest, and would doubtless have gone the limit had not Kenney received a blow in the muscle which made him quite willing to be counted out when Fortier soaked him in the jaw.

Then came the semi-final, so called. It should be final as far black fitzsimmons and olie kalloch are concerned, for after the prodigious fake they put up they should be debarré from ever appearing in a Rockland ring again. They did not put up even a decent bluff and the crowd was quickly wise to the imposition. Hisses, groans and jeers greeted the burlers, but they were deaf to the referee's warning and Tom's cuss words.

Black fitzsimmons in the fourth spasm declared that his hand was broken and went to Dr. Crockett for official confirmation of his statement. Dr. Crockett looked the hand over carefully and then made a speech that ought to be immortalized in his forthcoming book. He said: "I find no evidence of a fracture. In justice to black fitzsimmons I will say that the hand is slightly swollen and may possibly have been sprained, but I regard it as a good weapon if fitzsimmons cares to use it. Cheers for the doctor; more groans and hisses for fitz."

The main bout was a disappointment to the friends of Tom Sawyer, who honestly believe that he has beaten Bartley Connolly three times, and who expected to see him do it again. Sawyer was over-confident and under-trained. He showed up in excellent shape for two or three rounds, when Connolly began to land right uppercuts that would soon have finished a less rugged fighter than Tom. In the fifth round Sawyer's nose was broken and he was greatly handicapped by blood filling his throat as well as covering his face.

Connolly finished the stronger and better man, but there is no earthly excuse for the lie in the Portland Argus that "Connolly had it all his own way from the first, and that Sawyer was so far gone that he probably could not have responded for another round." Connolly probably wishes he thought that was the case. Tom's all right, but he must cut out some of the cigarettes and punch the bag often.

"Bill" Cowing, who was the crack catcher of the Colby team for several years, and who also played on the Warren and Rockland teams in the Knox County League, was in the city Wednesday. He is now principal of the high school at Deer Isle, and tips the scales at 200 pounds, but has never lost in touch of his interest in baseball. He was one of the best amateur ball players ever gathered to the shelf.

The Maine State League has been re-organized again. Waterville having strayed beyond the power of reorganization, South Portland and Biddeford have been admitted, making a six-team league. How many of the teams will survive July?

Black fitzsimmons will box Jack Twin Sullivan in Lewiston July Fourth. Police! Police!

The Bath Iron Works team, on which there are two Knox county boys, Feyler of Thomaston and St. Clair of Rockland, want to play here July 4th. The team recently defeated Topsham 12 to 10, Feyler playing short and St. Clair catching. Address J. E. Feyler, 217 Water street, Bath, Me.

HAD A STRONG TEAM.

Rockland High Played 13 Games and Won Them All—Would Like to Meet Edward Little High.

The Rockland High School baseball team, composed of all first class players, the best the school has ever had, has closed its season with a clean slate. Thirteen games were played, and it is a credit to the school's athletic talent that an alumni team gave Rockland high its only narrow escape from defeat.

In the 13 games Rockland high made a total of 149 scores, while the opposing teams made a total of only 47 runs. The concluding game with Lewiston high was played at the close of the regular season in response to a general request to have Rockland pitted against one of the best teams the state could boast. Lewiston was vanquished with practically the same ease that its predecessors had been and there is now a strong demand for a game with Edward Little high of Auburn, which is the only school team in Maine claiming to be Lewiston's superior. Following is Rockland high's record for the season.

Rockland H. S. 7, Thomaston H. S. 3.
Rockland H. S. 13, Camden H. S. 5.

Rockland H. S. 13, R. H. S. Alumni 1.
Rockland H. S. 14, Thomaston H. S. 2.
Rockland H. S. 8, Lewiston H. S. 2.

The makeup of the team is: Arthur Richardson c, William Bird p and cf, Harold Gray ss, Fred H. S. 13, Fred Black 2b, James Ross 3b, Maurice Bird ss, Carl Cottrell rf, Edward Veazie lf.

In spite of the fact that Rockland's score ran into two figures in eight of the 13 games, the team has depended more upon its fielding ability than its stick work. The loss early in the season of Hosmer second baseman and third baseman George Gay, threatened disaster, for both were fine batsmen as well as fielders. Black, who was a substitute at the beginning of the season distinguished himself by clever work at second, while Ross, a young sophomore did some quite remarkable stunts at third.

In baserunning the team has been exceptionally strong, over half the members being sprinters. Cottrell, the left fielder, is one of the best throwers who has been seen on the local grounds since the days of Rockland's first pitchers have been above the average. In one of the games with Castine Greene had 20 strikeouts. Bird was an excellent batter as well as a successful pitcher.

This strong team unfortunately loses seven men by graduation, Ross and Cottrell being the only survivors.

THEY WANT TO.

The Rockland High school boys have made a fine record in baseball this spring, winning all the 13 games played. They ought to have a game with the Edward Little High school nine, which won the pennant in the interscholastic league, Kennebec Journal.

use it. Cheers for the doctor; more groans and hisses for fitz."

The crowd was surprised at kalfake from fitz and was not wholly disappointed. It was surprised at kalfake, however, for olie has had the reputation of being a square and plucky fighter.

The main bout was a disappointment to the friends of Tom Sawyer, who honestly believe that he has beaten Bartley Connolly three times, and who expected to see him do it again. WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.
Washington, June 22.—If the country were as staunch an admirer of Senator Knox as is the Pennsylvania delegation in Congress the junior Senator for the Keystone state would be certain of the Republican nomination for President next year. Representative Henry Burd Cassel, of the ninth district, and Irving P. Wanger, of the eighth, believe that Mr. Knox has a splendid chance for the nomination and ultimate election. There is one thing certain, these men say, and that is that not only will the Pennsylvania delegation be solid from first to last for their candidate, but if he is nominated he will poll in Pennsylvania the largest vote ever given to any candidate for office. Congressman Cassel believes that Governor Hughes is not liked well enough by the politicians to become very formidable and he expects Mr. Knox will secure some votes from the New York delegation. He also believes that New England, Delaware and, perhaps, New Jersey, will fall in line, although Speaker Cannon has many friends in the latter state. Congressman Wanger believes everything that his colleague says and that the Senator Knox will gather to himself all the strength of the conservative forces as time goes on.

The new Inland Waterways Commission has no greater admirer than Carl E. Dennett, of Bangor, Me., who was here this week. Mr. Dennett believes that the country yet will turn to its streams, not only as a means of transportation, but also for developing power for the operation of mills and factories. The development of hydro-electric power, he says, will mean more to the South than anything in a commercial way that has taken place in many years. For the state made a twenty-five years' contract for operating its plant at $65,000 a year, where formerly it had operated by burning coal at an annual expense of $125,000. Once this great saving in operating expenses of mills is supplemented by the enormous saving in transportation charges that developed waterways will bring, the United States will be enabled to capture the foreign markets and laugh at all competitors. For less than a half decade the National Rivers & Harbors Congress has been pointing out the advantages to be gained by shippers in such a development, an argument that is proved by the fact that on the Great Lakes freight charges on commodities are less than one-ninth of the charges by rail. The saving on water freights through the rivers also would be very big at that.

New Hampshire is to lose the historic little Spanish galleon Don Juan de Austria, which was captured from the Spanish in the late war. The State Department is making an effort to have the little vessel located on the Lakes for the use of the naval militia in that section. The matter is being pressed in the hope that the transfer of the vessel may be accomplished before fall, in time to take part in the maneuvers of the naval militia. The ship was captured by the Navy Department and is the most elaborate ever attempted on the Lakes, a fleet of five vessels taking part. It is feared, however, that the Don Juan de Austria will not be able to join this fleet in time, because of the roundabout diplomatic road which must be traversed in obtaining England's consent to the appearance of another war vessel on the inland seas.

In a spirit of co-operation, the administration is going to aid the George Washington University in making its new college of the political sciences a great training school for members of the diplomatic corps and the consular service. Negotiations have practically been completed whereby John Ball Osborne, chief of the bureau of trade relations of the State Department is to be appointed lecturer on the consular service. The need for trained men in these days of commercial stress and international strife for control of foreign trade is growing more apparent every day. Hitherto appointments to the consular service have come about through political "pull" or as reward for party services rendered. Under the new system candidates for these offices will be compelled to pass a rigid examination and be versed both in languages and the customs of foreign countries, with a special reference to world politics. Realizing that this change eventually would be forced upon the government, the George Washington University in 1898 organized the department of law and political science, which will hereafter be known as the college of the political sciences. The change is in keeping with the general plan of the university to make of itself the great graduate school for the United States and realize the ambition dream.

Thousands Have Kidney

Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How to Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or setling of particles indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

ed by George Washington, and embodied in his will.

In a report issued this week by Assistant Secretary of the Navy, it is shown that the total strength of the naval militia in the United States, according to the returns of July 1, 1906, was 50,000, of whom 473 are officers and 4,624 are enlisted men. Illinois leads the list with a total of 658 officers and men, while Ohio has 132, Minnesota 117, Michigan 131, California 452, Connecticut 220, District of Columbia 219, Louisiana 54, Maryland 23, Massachusetts 493, New Jersey 303, New York 616, Rhode Island 187, South Carolina 161, and North Carolina 177. Reports reaching the Navy Department, indicate that the New England states are looking forward eagerly to the naval maneuvers to take place next month on Lake Erie. These maneuvers will be on a more elaborate scale than ever has been attempted before on the Great Lakes.

There is a growing tendency to decorate men in the public service with university degrees. Debarred by the constitution from the conference of decorations of any kind, the government has no means of recognizing publicly the useful careers of public servants, or of showing its appreciation in any material way of the acts of those from foreign governments who have helped to uplift the race. In this quandary the American universities have stepped in. Last week the University of Chicago conferred an honorary degree upon the British ambassador, and this week Fordham University conferred upon the Hon. Herbert G. Squires, United States minister to Panama, the honorary degree of LL. D. The degree is given in appreciation of Minister Squires' long and useful career in the service of the country. The diploma made a notable record in Pekin during the Boxer troubles, when he was chief of staff for Sir Claude MacDonald and did splendid service in preserving from massacre the inhabitants of the beleaguered legation. For his work in this connection he was given the thanks of the British government. Later he made a brilliant record as United States minister to Cuba, a post he held from May 1902 to November 1905, when he resigned.

Senator Eugene Hale, of Maine, who a few weeks ago underwent an operation at the Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, is making recovery. For some time anxiety was felt over the Senator's condition, but he now is on the high road to health. He is weak yet, however, and has decided not to accept Senator Rayner's invitation to spend some time in the latter's home. As soon as he gets away from the hospital, which will be in a few days, he will go home at once.

Samuel W. Pennypacker, former governor of Pennsylvania and ardent supporter of the newspaper fraternity, has made a new bid for fame. Incidentally, he cannot refrain from airing his rather acid views with regard to writers. At the recent commencement exercises of the Washington Central Manual Training School, Mr. Pennypacker set about the task of removing the historical stigma from the memory of the late lamented Richard III, who for quite a number of years has been regarded as one of the wickedest and cruellest rulers England ever had. The former governor of the Keystone state told the graduates that the monarch was "a kind, well-meaning and reputable monarch, but the writers of his day got a hold of him and now he is looked on as a monster of iniquity." It would not be surprising were Mr. Pennypacker to attempt to vindicate the character of Bluebeard next.

With the June girl graduate abroad and the summer girl just entering into the noon of her power, the Interstate Commerce Commission will be lauded by youthful femininity throughout the East. Some time ago the Association of American Florists filed a complaint with the Commission against the express charges on cut flowers from New Jersey and Pennsylvania points to New England. The Commissioners, remembering their youthful days, were horror-struck and issued an order to reduce the exorbitant rates. As a result the United States Express Company this week notified the Commission that it had cut these rates forty per cent. Lovestick swains now can send to the object of their admiration more flowers at a less price than heretofore. This is the cause for joy in the hearts of the summer girls.

SPINAL MENINGITIS.

State Board of Health Seeking Information Maybe of Value.

Dr. A. G. Young, secretary of the State Board of Health, is sending out to the local boards in towns where the disease known as cerebro-spinal meningitis has occurred or been prevalent, blanks for the use of those boards in obtaining information regarding the disease and also the probable cause of infection. The blank contains a series of nineteen questions to be answered, and provides for a complete record of each case. The inquiry for which the blank is designed relates only to the communicable or epidemic form of the disease and not to tubercular meningitis.

The blank is supplemented by several notes the first of which says: "The present status of our knowledge regarding the ways in which cerebro-spinal meningitis is communicated indicates the probability that the presence of the meningococcus in the nasal secretions of the sick, and of persons who have been associated or come in contact with the sick, constitutes the greatest source of danger. Though such persons, carrying the infection in nose or throat may themselves remain well, may not even suffer from coryza or nasal catarrh, they may, it is believed, communicate the infection to other persons."

When desirous of investigating outbreaks of cerebro-spinal meningitis local boards of health or physicians may obtain copies of the blank by applying to the office of the State Board of Health at Augusta.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or the Kidneys. The Heart, Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach, nerves, the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample or free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by Titus & Hills, Rockland; G. I. Robinson Drug Co., Thomaston; Chandler's Pharmacy, Camden.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown and two sons, Alton and Ralph, called on friends in Camden Sunday.

Schools in town closed this week for the summer vacation.

SIMONTON

The school at this place remained in session a week longer than the other Rockport schools this spring to make up a week lost during the winter term and the closing exercises were held Friday afternoon, of last week. There was a large attendance of parents and friends of scholars, and the excellence of the exercises reflected much credit on both teacher and scholars. The schoolroom was prettily decorated for occasion with lilac blossoms and other flowers and foliage. Compositions and other written work of the scholars were exhibited and were the subject of much favorable comment. Before recess recitations in the regular school work were listened to, and after recess the following program was presented: Concert recitation, Psalm 23, school; recitation, Thelma Oxtun; recitation, Dana Gray; recitation, George Marshall; concert recitation, younger pupils; recitation, Edith Marcellow; recitation, Doris Gray; recitation, Evelyn Morton; vocal song, younger pupils; recitation, Marion Whitney; song, school; recitation, Gladys Merritt; concert recitation, school; recitation, Hilma Marcellow; recitation, Edwin Erickson; remarks by Frank H. Ingraham, Supt. of Schools, and by visiting parents.

Miss Amber M. Philbrook, of this place, a graduate of the class of 1906, Rockport High School, has taught the Simonton school during the entire school year, and is to be complimented on her success.

Remarkable Rescue
That truth is stranger than fiction, has once more been demonstrated in the little town of Fedora, Tenn., the residence of C. V. Pepper. He writes: "I was in bed, entirely disabled with hemorrhages of the lungs and throat. Doctors failed to help me, and all hope had fled when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Then instant relief came. The coughing soon ceased; the bleeding diminished rapidly, and in three weeks I was able to go to work." Guaranteed cure for coughs and colds, 50c and $1.00, at Wm. H. Kittredge, drug store, Rockland; G. I. Robinson Drug Co., Thomaston. Trial bottle free.

When you feel the need of a pill take a DeWitt Little Early Riser. Sold by Wm. H. Kittredge.

ALL HAIL PE-RU-NA.
A Cure of STOMACH CATARRH.

Miss Mary O'Brien, 808 Myrtle Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "Peruna cured me in five weeks of catarrh of the stomach, after suffering for four years and doctoring without effect. In common with other grateful ones who have been benefited by your discovery, I say, All hail to Peruna."

Mr. H. J. Henneman, Oakland, Neb., writes:

"I waited before writing to you about my sickness, catarrh of the stomach, which I had over a year ago."

"There were people who told me it would not stay cured, but I am sure that I am cured, for I do not feel any more ill effects, have a good appetite and am getting fat."

"So I am, and will say to all, I am cured for good."

"I thank you for your kindness."

"Peruna will be our house medicine hereafter."

Catarrh of the stomach is also known in common parlance as dyspepsia, gastritis and indigestion. No medicine will be of any permanent benefit except it removes the catarrhal condition.

Nervous Debility.
Miss Irene Smith, 10 Minnesota Ave., Randle Highlands, Washington, D. C., writes:

"Peruna cured me of catarrh of the head and stomach and nervous debility from which I suffered for two years."
